All tactics are to be seen as experiments to try, fail, and adjust. If you don't understand the goal or justification for these activities, don't start them. Ensure you know what you want to get out of these tactics and make adjustments in perpetuity.

Many of these slides are taken from alternate sources from Google and Accelinova. I'm happy to cite them properly if needed.

As a Des Moines Agile conference goer, I want to learn some of the basics so that I can apply them properly in my organization.

dissatisfaction but cannot motivate

So, how can we do this?

Guide

...but don't give answers:

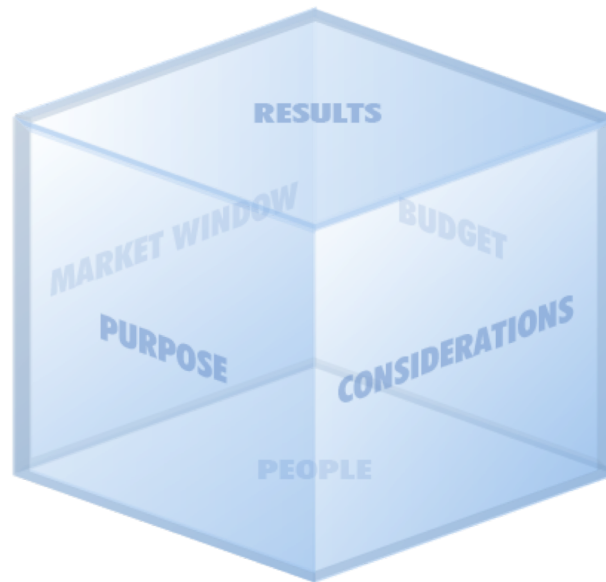

What have you tried so far?

How do you want to solve it?

How can I help?

Macro Leadership Cube

1. Write epics and user stories
2. Estimate stories using points
3. Plan 3 months
4. Conduct 2 week sprints with demos and retros
5. Have daily standups
6. You can have more than 6 sides...or less!

1. Write user epics and stories

As a <persona>, I want <goal>, so that <justification>

2. Estimate stories using points

NOTE: This is not to gauge performance! This is for the team's ability to predict when things are going to be done done done

3. Plan 3 months

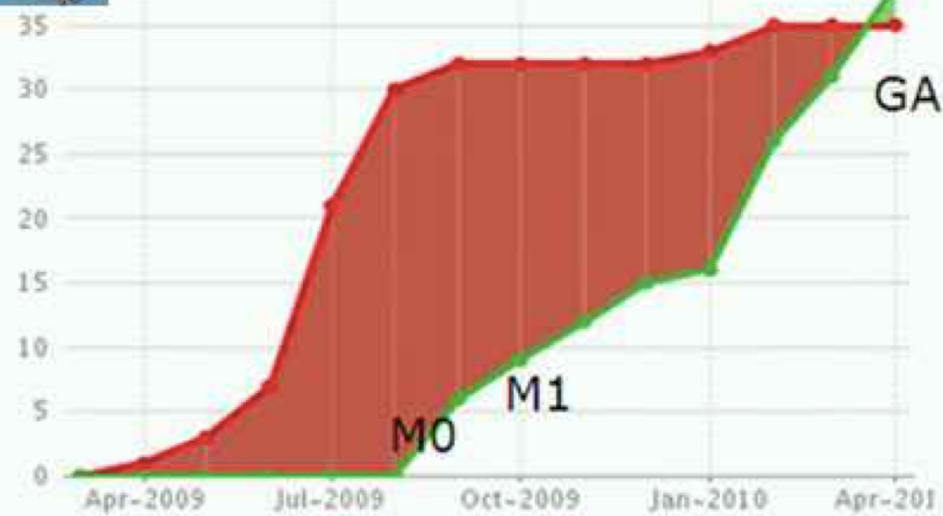

- Write a few goals you'd be proud to achieve in 3 months
- Have the goals be outcome based
- Measure them easily

Finish the sentence:

“This goal can be declared a success when _____”

4. Conduct 2 week sprints (or less)

Wednesday: Planning and go

- What stories are you pulling in?
- What questions do you have?
- What hypotheses do you want to test in the demo?

2 Tuesday's Later: Demo, then Retrospective

- Demos are for you! Be selfish and make your stakeholders work.
- Retros: No managers, no outsiders, no consequences.
 - What went well? What didn't? What are we going to change?

5. Have daily standups

- What did you accomplish yesterday?
- What is your plan today?
- How are you blocked?
- Parking lot

Give these a try, learn the justification, then experiment with new tactics to achieve the same goals
